"One of our students used to avoid reading out loud whenever possible. He would look down at his desk, whisper his words, and quickly say, "I can't do it." But every week, his tutor showed up with patience, encouragement, and a smile. Week after week, they read together — celebrating small victories, laughing through tricky words, and building trust along the way. Over time, something began to change. He started greeting his tutor at the door with excitement and asking, "What are we reading today?" His confidence grew with every session. By the end of the year, he was volunteering to read aloud in class and proudly sharing books with his classmates. What started as one hour a week became so much more than tutoring — it became a relationship that helped a student believe in himself as a reader."

"Scores alone do not capture the growth I saw in all my students who participated in Oasis Tutoring. They loved the care and attention they received from each of their tutors. Some of these kids come from trauma, dysfunctional homes, attention issues....and the time they spent with their tutors filled their souls not just academically, but filled their hearts emotionally because their tutors showed they really cared about them!"
